Item 116, Ellie's Violin Valued at $100 Starting bid $25

Ellie Bodin-Castleman is a huge fan of psychology, sociology and history, especially European! Ellis is currently in college majoring in social work with plans to become a therapist. She enjoys helping people be the best version of themselves.

Ellis has not taken art related courses, but I took Advanced Placement Art Studio and completed a 12-piece portfolio. Her goal with this piece is to show off the elegance of the violin rather than overstimulate the viewer with contrast.

Ellie loves the elegance of koi ponds with bright pastel colors and the fluid motions of the koi against the still water. Part of her inspiration came from her koi fish tattoo, so she added a version of that to her artwork. She loved this project and saw it as a great opportunity to paint on a new canvas. Donated by Ellie Bodin-Castleman

Item 140, Persimmon Picking Valued at $100 Starting bid $25

If you are the lucky winner of this auction item, you will get to go to the farm in of Diane's farm in Danville, IN to pick persimmons either on the ground or from the branches of her persimmon tree. This will be for 2022. Persimmons may begin to ripen in late September and continue through the first or second frost. This means, we will try to give a window of a few days when we think the picking is at a premium for you and your guests to come to our place for 2-3 hours of picking fun.

Bring your own baskets or bags. You get to take the persimmons home and make them into a pulp ready to use in your own persimmon pudding recipe or I will give you a tried- and-true secret recipe of mine. The winner should watch for a call or email from me, Diane Tolliver, Propylaeum Member, somewhere in October 2022.

This year's persimmon tree on the farm is heavily laden with fruit! There are no guarantees about next year's bounty. Donated by: Diane Tolliver
